

Lesson 72: 話がある場合の台本1: 軽い話題

Can I have a word?

A: Hey, can I have a word when you have a moment?

B: Yeah, of course. Is everything okay?

A: Just need your advice on this project.

A: Tom, can I have a word outside?

B: Okay... Did I do something wrong?

A: We just need to talk about your behavior in class.

Do you have a minute?

A: Hey, do you have a minute?

B: Yeah, what's up?

A: I need to talk to you about something personal.

A: Mr. Johnson, do you have a minute?

B: Of course. What's your question?

A: I'm not sure how to solve number 5 on the worksheet.

Have you got a moment?

A: Excuse me, Mr. Carter. Have you got a moment?

B: Yes, of course. What is it?

A: I'd like to ask about today's presentation.

A: Hey, have you got a moment?

B: Sure. What's going on?

A: Can you check this email before I send it?

idiom

hit the books

meaning: it is used to say that you're going to study.

Example: Sorry, but I can't watch the game with you tonight. I have to hit the books.

If you want to pass the test, you'd better hit the books.

Lesson 73: 話がある場合の台本2: 深刻な話題

Listen, we need to talk.

A: Listen, we need to talk.

B: About what?

A: About how we've been communicating lately.

A: Listen, we need to talk.

B: Sure. Is something wrong?

A: We need to go over the mistakes in your report.

Could you come to my office?

A: Mr. Davis, could you come to my office when you have a moment?

B: Of course. I'll come by in five minutes.

A: Thank you. There's something I'd like to discuss.

A: Could you come to my office?

B: Is everything alright?

A: Yes, don't worry. I just need to clarify a few things about the report.
